CREAT CONVENTION.

Reports from every part of Alberta go to show that there will be a bumper attendance at the big Sunday School Convention in Edmonton, October 27, 28 and 29. All denominations are interested and will be well represented. General Secretary Kenny expects fully 40 persons to travel 300 miles, or over each way in order to be there. Marion Lawrance, General Secretary of the International Sunday School Association, and Prof. E. O. Excell, of Chicago will assist. A choir of 500 voices and a host of the most prominent workers in Alberta will also take part. The committee is certain that much over 100 delegates will attend and single fare will thus be secured on C. N. R. and C. P. R. Full convention privileges are accorded to all who attend but every school is urged to appoint official delegates who will bring a report to the school.

NEW POST OFFICE RULES

Our postmaster formulates the following rules for the benefit of his patrons and that you may know what you may expect: No letters given out until they have been received. If you don't get a letter or a paper on the day you expect it, have the postmaster look through all the boxes and down the cellar also. It ought to be there somewhere and he likes to hunt for it just to please you. If your friend don't write rave at the postmaster. He is to blame. If he tells you no; put on a grivied look and say there ought to be some. He is probably hiding your mail for the pleasures of having you call for it. Ask him to look again. If you are buying stamps make him lick them and put them on, that's his business.

We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's prosperity means a great deal more to us than someone's who lives elsewhere. We should bear this in mind in buying our goods. We can afford to pay our home man a firm price for his wares rather than send our money away, knowing as we do that every dollar our own citizen makes will help in sustaining our schools, churches and public institutions. It pays richly to patronize home industry.

BRYAN SPOKE IN CROSSFIELD.

William Jennings Bryan, the silver-tongued orator, who has thrice been defeated Democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States, has been lecturing in Edmonton and Calgary. On Tuesday afternoon he went south to Calgary. Some of the people of Crossfield wished to hear him and Mr. P. I. McNally telegraphed to Colonel Bryan to ask if he would speak in Crossfield while the train stopped. On the arrival of the train from the north a rush for the station was made from all directions and a cheer was raised as the popular American statesman appeared. After shaking hands with Mr. McNally and Mr. R. L. Boyle the Colonel spoke for a few minutes until the train commenced to move out.

Mr. Bryan speaking from the steps of the car said that he had got a telegram asking him to speak. He could not speak of his politics as he made a rule not to do so outside of the States and he did not know enough of Canadian politics to talk them. He was learning of the wonderful resources of the Dominion. Canada was the only country that could draw people out of the States permanently. In other places he heard them speaking of when they were going back to the States, but here they were locating permanently and making good citizens. He wished them "God Speed."

Three hearty cheers were given as he re-entered the car.

HAPPY MARRIAGE.

Another wedding is to be recorded this week. All unlooked for by his many friends around here Mr. P. C. Cowling arrived back in town last Saturday, after a short absence, accompanied by a bride. Grant, of Corunna, Ont. We wish the happy couple all kinds of good wishes.

AMENDMENT OF THE GAME ACT.

By an amendment, assented to on the 25th February last, a license fee of $15.00 is imposed on such sportsmen as are not "residents," as defined in the following clause:

"The term 'non-resident' shall mean a person who has not resided in the Province of Alberta for three months prior to the first day of September in any year, and who does not occupy a quarter section of land either as owner, lessee, or homesteader.

This seems pretty rough on town sportsman at first sight, but provision is made for them by which they can get some legitimate shooting on enclosed land as guests of the owner, the license fee for this being only $2.00.

Ranchers and other land holders will welcome the new enactment insofar as it will give them some much needed protection against the "game hogs" who out before daylight on the opening day of the season, and skin the cream off the shooting, putting no limit on the number of birds they kill, and often taking them back to town only to turn them into money.

THE TOWN YOU LIVE IN

Think well of it.

Stand up for it.

Patronize its merchants.

Encourage its industries.

Cheer every live enterprise.

Hurrah for the enthusiastic.

See that it is beautiful in it.

Chant praises to the good it possesses.

Sing of its wonders, you'll find it has some.

Praise it and laud it if you wish thrift to come.

Welcome improvements, stagnation's a sin.

Love it, stick to it,—the town you live in.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

All pull together, brethren. We are all here for the same purpose. There is love and let live. The best way to build up a town is for each and every man to pull together and not strive to rend and tear down. All the residents of a town are partners, not opponents. In all likelihood the more business done by your rival the more you will do. Every merchant who treats his customers honestly and fairly will get his share and the more business that can be secured by united effort, the better it will be for all. When a town ceases to grow it commences to die, and the more people try to kill each other off in business and good name the more rapidly will utter ruin come to all. Stand together for the advancement of every citizen, and if a man shows the ability to prosper do not pull him back with jealousy or weight him with cold indifference.

A man who has always got his hands in his pocket generally hasn't anything else there.

The sun rises on a better world every day.—Lord Burnham, at the Press Conference.

In the pettiest character there are unfathomable depths.

THE MIRAGE.

Conditions That Make Possible This Beautiful Illusion.

About that natural phenomenon, the mirage, much mystery clung in days of old, but science explains it as readily as the rainbow.

The fata morgana of the strait of Messina and the specter of the Brocken were nothing more in sober reality than mere mirages.

A mirage may occur at any place where the denser stratum of air is placed above the lighter stratum, thus refracting the rays of light, the common surface of the two strata acting as a mirror.

In looming mirages distant objects show an extravagant increase in vertical height without alteration in breadth. Distant hummocks of ice are thus magnified into immense towers and pinnacles, and a ship is sometimes abnormally drawn up until it appears twelve or thirteen times as high as it is long. Rocks are seen drawn up to ten or twelve times their proper height. Houses as well as human beings and animals appear in like exaggerated shape.

Another form of mirage is when a ship or some object near the water seems greatly elongated and a second inverted image meets it from above.

Sometimes the proper image of the object is elevated far above the sea, while the second image strangely appears inverted beneath it, the whole surrounded by a sheet of sky which is mirrored and repeated within it.

In 1882 in the arctic region Captain Scoresby recognized by his inverted image in the air his father's ship, the Fame, which afterward proved to be seventeen miles beyond the visible horizon of his observation.

On August evening in 1800 Dr. Vince saw from Ramsgate, at which place only the tops of Dover castle were usually visible, the whole of the castle. It appeared as though lifted up and bodily placed on the near side of the intervening hill. So perfect was this illusion that the hill itself actually could not be seen through the figure.

Some forms of mirage are lateral as well as vertical, arising from unequal density of two contiguous vertical bodies of air. Thus on Lake Geneva a boat has been seen double, the two images some distance apart.

Persons have been duped in the same way. Any one on a hot day by placing his eye near to a heated wall may see lateral mirages of objects at a distance and nearly on a line with the wall.

Mirages are very frequent on deserts or the large sandy plains which abound in the southwestern states and territories. Many a pausing wagon train has pushed on in joyous haste at the sight of a green grove or limpid lake, only to be cruelly disappointed at the fading away of the vision. Is it any wonder that the natives and Indians regard the phenomenon as the work of evil and tantalizing spirits?

Lake Ontario is famous for beautiful and wonderful mirages, during which the opposite shore of the lake is plainly visible from either side.—Pearson's.

His Shrewd Idea.

"Who is that sour looking girl with the heavy underlip?"

"That is the only daughter of old De Milyuns."

"And who is the dainty bit of sweet-temper with the blue eyes and golden hair?"

"That's the chapero."

"What's the explanation?"

"Why, it's old De Milyun's clever idea. He thinks his Jane will be perfectly safe as long as Miss Blossom is around."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Easy.

"What can a doctor do when he gets a patient who neither drinks nor smokes?"

"Tell him to stop eating certain things. Everybody eats."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Slight Difference.

The globe trotter was telling about the wonders of India.

"The scenery is some portions of the country," he said, with enthusiasm, "is incomparable. Far, far away, the mountains pile up toward the sky, and stretching off to them are beautiful valleys, while close at hand you can get in sight of a man eating tiger."

"I beg your pardon," interrupted an eager listener, "but did you say inside of a man eating tiger or in sight of one?"

Didn't Take the Bait.

Miss Acnate (instinctually)—I dislike my name; it's horrid. Mr. Fry (absolutely)—I fear it's too late to change it now.

Thick Silence.

Pretty Unpopular.

Wag—Blonde doesn't seem to be very popular. Wag—I should say not. Why, that fellow is so unpopular he couldn't even get a job as a bill collector.—Philadelphia Record.

MALCOLM KIRK

A Tale of Moral Heresies
In Overcoming the World.By CHARLES M. SLEDGON,
Author of "In His Steps," "Crucifixion of Philip Strong,"
"Robert Harley's Seven Days."Copyright, 1920, by the Advance Publishing Co.

He rose at once and walked straight over to the fireplace. On the mantel was a miniature of Dorothy, painted by a New York artist, a young woman who was famous for such work.

"I have no right," Kirk spoke without a tremor, "but if I take this and keep it for a year sacredly to guard it from every eye but my own and never to speak of it and then return it when I come back."

She was so surprised that her self-possession failed her. Kirk's hand was on the miniature and she looked at Dorothy noticed even at that moment.

"You are not unwilling? I make no claim. I have none. I simply shall keep it for a year. Perhaps the constant sight of it will prove to me how hopeless."

The man paused and looked straight at Dorothy. There was something so hungry and at the same time so unaffected in his look that again Dorothy was speechless. He took the picture, and it lay in his great palm a moment, and then his fingers closed slowly over it. He looked up at her again. She had turned away and was nervously tracing lines with her fingers on the table.

"I have no excuse to offer for what I have done," he said, and there was that in his voice that made Dorothy look up.

"I realize all the distance between us. It will do you no harm to let me have the picture and you do me good."

Dorothy at last found her voice.

"I have not let you have it. It seems to me you have taken it away."

"You did not say so," replied Malcolm Kirk firmly. Then he paused as if waiting an answer. And again she was silent. He moved toward the picture, and he looked almost handsome as he said it. He stood there an instant, and then he was gone, and Dorothy remained like one who has felt some great emotion, not yet measured. She had refused to let Francis Raleigh have the miniature. He had begged for it. He also was going abroad to finish his studies in art. But when he asked for the picture she had told him no, and he had gone away without a definite answer to his petition that she without a word? Might he not claim the right to keep it anyway?

He scarcely hesitated to answer this question. He found his way to his room in the intermediate cabin and came out on the deck again. At the steamer went down the harbor he thoughtfully reviewed his course and looked out into the new life before him with quiet hope.

It was 10 o'clock when he went down to his room. As he proceeded to arrange his things, a maid in a smart dress called a cabin one of the steward's came by. There were two or three other men sitting at the table in the dining room and looking toward the

"Any of you a clergyman?" asked the steward.

No answer, and Kirk after a moment stepped out and said: "I'm a clergyman. What is wanted?"

The steward looked a little doubtful at the long, unattractive figure. "There's a woman down aft here in a poor way. She wants some one to pray with her."

"I'll go," said Kirk quietly, and he followed the steward, not knowing as he went that this his first ministry of service was to prove one of the most remarkable events in his eventful life. Meanwhile the steamer had reached the limits of the harbor. The great ocean lay before him in his eventful life. He and the lookout on the forward deck was saying to himself, "It's going to be a beautiful night."

On the promenade deck two men were pacing up and down.

"But how did it happen, Raleigh. Give me the passage of the night?"

"I thought you were planning to go by the Anchor line from New York."

"I did plan to go two weeks later, but something happened. My movements, I shall be glad to get to work again, and I'm thankful to be thrown in with you, Ed. We can talk over old college days."

They turned in front of the music room, and the light fell on Francis Raleigh. "This," he said, "is the woman that Malcolm Kirk down in the intermediate cabin knelt to pray. The lookout on the bow was saying, 'We shall have a quiet voyage.'"

CHAPTER III.

A DEATH BY MIDWINTER.

When Malcolm Kirk entered the little cabin which the steward led him, he found the assistant surgeon of the steamer bending over the figure in the berth there.

A woman was sitting near by. The surgeon rose and beckoned Kirk to step outside a moment.

"You are a clergyman?"

Kirk nodded.

The surgeon looked at him as doubtfully as the steward had done, but he seemed satisfied at last.

"Well, my knight as well known the woman has consumption. She may last until we reach Liverpool, and she may go before Sunday. She ought never to have been allowed passage."

"I can tell how that is," said the steward.

"I noticed the woman come on with her baby. She looked as bright and pretty as any one. Seemed strong and sat out on deck until we left the dock. Then she came down here and went to sleep. I've known one or two such cases before."

"That's true," said the surgeon gravely. "I'll be back before mid night. It will do no harm for you to see her." He spoke to Kirk and went away, leaving him standing somewhat awkwardly by the half open door.

The woman called in a faint voice, and Kirk went in.

"Are you the clergyman?" she asked.

"Yes," replied Kirk simply. "Can I be of service to you? Do you want me to pray with you?"

The woman nodded. Kirk knelt, and the other woman who had been sitting as nurse bowed her head.

It was the first time Malcolm Kirk had been called on to pray by the side of a dying person. The first service he had ever performed in the most unassuming manner when he was asked to take upon himself the burden and the joy of comfort. His own life had been free from physical weakness. His own family had moved away and scattered when he was a lad, and the death of both his father and mother when he was a child had left no impression on his early memory.

The situation, therefore, now impressed him strongly that the impression was redeemed from painful religion by his intense longing to be of help to this stranger. When he had told his ordinary classmates that he loved people, he had spoken one of the largest truths of his great hearted character. So his prayer went out to the God of all comfort, and it is very certain that he touched the heart of that human hunger for divine compassion, for he was filled with a faith which with a sob, while the other woman made no attempt to conceal the tears that ran over her face.

Kirk as he rose with increased respect. He said a few words simply, but cheerfully, and then went out. The woman who had been nursing followed him and closed the door a moment.

"Thank you for coming in. It did her good. It was a case."

"Yes. Has she any relatives or friends on board?"

"No. As near as I have learned she has no relatives in London. This sister has been writing her for some time to come here. This woman's husband died a few weeks ago. Since then she has been supporting herself in Boston by sewing. Her baby is a month old. She sold a few things, and with the money she bought a ticket and with a great effort reached the dock this afternoon. The ship's company did not know of her condition or they certainly would never have let her come on board. That is all I know of the case. Of course we will do all we can for her and the baby now. The sea will be a help to her after all."

The woman who spoke was only that some people call a "common" person. Kirk could see that. Yet she was one of the great army of quiet, unassuming women who give the world true definitions of the word "modesty."

She stepped to the door of her own room, which was close by, and beckoned Kirk to look in and see the baby.

He was sleeping in the upper berth, and Kirk looked at him gravely, wondering what sort of future awaited that child of humanity.

He shut the door gently and went back to the mother, while Kirk retired to his own narrow quarters and listened to the strange noises and the sighs of the ocean through the little round port he was soon fast asleep after a prayer for blessing on all who suffer and all who are in trouble.

The next day the woman sank rapidly. Her baby was taken to the cabin wanted to do something. There was no lack of care for the baby. Every woman wanted to help. Saturday morning, however, the mother, badly rallied, as is often the case, and when the passengers gathered for a little service which Kirk was asked to lead, she wanted her door left open so that she also could hear the singing better.

It was a novel experience for Kirk. The intermediate cabin was not crowded as it would be on the return voyage which Kirk was to lead.

From what the English people call the "middle classes." We in America say the "common people." This means the middle of the social ranks of labor, not necessarily very poor, often well read, with love of home and in most cases with a religious faith in Christ. Text of the Lesson, Acts xxvi, 19-32.

Memory Verses, 27-29—Golden Text, 11 Tim. i, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

After being two years or more a prisoner at Caesarea, Festus being removed instead of Felix and having gone up to Jerusalem, the high priest and chief of the Jews inform him against Paul and desire him to bring Paul to Jerusalem, intending, if he consented, to lay in wait for him and kill him. Festus replied that they must come to Caesarea, and there appear against him. This they did; but, as before, it was simply a case of complaints which they could not prove. In reply to Festus' question, "Will thou go up to Jerusalem and there be judged?" he answered, "I will." King Agrippa having the place of hearing with great pomp, accompanied by the chief captains and principal men of the city, Paul is brought before them, and after a brief statement by Festus, Paul is permitted to speak for himself. He told of his early life as a Pharisee and his zeal against the followers of Jesus until he was accused of being a Christian and so was sent to Rome.

BETRAYED BY CINEMATOGRAPH.

A startling incident happened during an exhibition of living pictures at a public hall in Paris recently. The hall was crowded and pictures of the Rheims aviation meeting were being shown on the screen, when a woman in the audience gave a piercing scream and fell on the floor in a state of wild hysteria. Her husband was also seen to be suffering from great emotion, and the two were taken out. It was then found that in one of the pictures the woman herself had appeared sitting at a table in a cafe accompanied by a man. The husband is a commercial traveller, and during the aviation week he had been away from home on business. His wife was supposed to have been in the country with her mother at this time, but the picture showed that she had renewed the acquaintance of a former lover whom she had given up on her marriage. When the couple reached home the husband gave vent to the fiercest anger and jealousy, and fired at his wife with the intention of killing her. She was, however, unhurt.

SHORTER ROUTE TO BRITAIN

The American Consul at St. John's, Newfoundland, gives an account of the progress with the plans for establishing a short steamship route from Europe to Canada by way of Newfoundland. The object is to provide the shortest possible route between Europe, the British Isles, and the Continent of America, and this line will involve a much shorter sea passage than any existing route. It is proposed to run a line of fast steamers from some port in England to a port on Green Bay, Newfoundland. From there an eight-five mile railway will be built to some port in Bay of Islands, on the west coast, and thence fast steamers will cross to some point in Canada. This will make the journey from Great Britain to Canada and the United States twenty-four or thirty-six hours shorter than any other route, and save nearly half the sea voyage. The Newfoundland Government have given their approval and support to the scheme.

CATHOLICS AND SOCIALISM

The sittings of the Catholic Truth Society, at Manchester, England, were largely devoted to Socialism and the Roman Catholic attitude. Mr. Hilaire Belloc, M.P., introducing the subject, said the Roman Catholic Church was the only effective barrier to socialism. Roman Catholics opposed it because they reject of the best theories of socialism, that it would make a better and happier manhood. It was normal to man: that he should own material things. Socialism was described by other speakers as a material evil, to fight which the principles of the Roman Catholic faith must be applied.

Something New

It is for you Laboring Man, Business Man or Capitalist?

If you are a laboring man you want to better your condition and provide for time of need, sickness or old age. You, business man, want to make money faster than you do now? Of course you do. We all like to get hold of the dollars and pile them up faster, and though you, capitalist, have abundance of this world's treasures, still you want to see your money make more money for you.

It is the Law of Nature born in man. The more we have the more we want, and it is quite right too, to make all you can if you make it honestly.

Now here is our "New Plan" we are selling mining stock, nothing new in that; well, don't stop, read on and see. We are selling Mining Stock of a company that has its holdings in one of the richest districts in America and therefore if you buy its stock you stand a chance to make a fortune. You know many fortunes were made in the past and many more will be made in future, the Trust company will pay back to you every dollar you invested and besides you keep the stock and dividends you received in the meantime. Think of it, a proposition in which you have all the chances to make the big profit, and besides your original investment is guaranteed so that you can't lose the money you invest.

Here is Where Our New Plan Comes In

Your INVESTMENT is positively GUARANTEED, not by the Company, but by an INDEPENDENT, REPUTABLE, CANADIAN TRUST COMPANY. This Trust Company will give you a written guarantee, that if this Company fails to pay you 100 per cent. on your investment in a specified length of time, the Trust company will pay back to you every dollar you invested and besides you keep the stock and dividends you received in the meantime. Think of it, what this means to the investor.

When a Mining Company has such a safe proposition to offer that an Independent Trust Company is willing to guarantee your investment, so if the Mining Company fails to make good, they will pay your money back out of their treasury. We sell this stock, with the Trust Company's guarantee, at 50c. per share, par value $1.00 as long as our present allotment lasts.

Write without delay for further information, or better still send in your subscription for as much of this stock as you want, for this stock is going fast, and, as soon as this allotment is sold, we will raise the price to $1.00 per share.

COCHRANE POLO CLUB

The closing of the Polo season of 1909 was celebrated by our local club on Wednesday evening last by a dinner at the Murphy House, to which members of the Grand Valley and Glenbow Clubs and other guests were invited.

The chair was taken by R. W. Wildoss, and the following gentlemen were present:—
Messrs. R. W. Melkloj, P. Kerfoot and D. Kerfoot, of the Grand Valley Club, V. D. Saunders of the Glenbow Club, the Hon. C. W. Fisher, M. L. A., the Rev. R. Harrison, T. Fisher, Frank Towers, Ed. Townsend, Mr. Davidson, W. J. Simpson, D. Alexander, G. Delbeck, C. N. Austin, Howard Abell, Hicks-Beach, J. G. Tweed, J. P. A. McPherson, O. Johnson, W. Johnson and Gordon Hinde.

Ample justice having been done to the good things provided by Wm. Dean, cigars were lit and the Chairman gave the toast of "The King" which was honoured in the usual hearty manner. Mr. Wildoss proceeded to speak of the Club and its fortunes during the past season, and its prospects of increasing strength and success in the future.

The "Province of Alberta," having been proposed by the Chairman, the Hon. C. W. Fisher responded. Having briefly complimented the Polo Club on its successful establishment, and wished it well in the future, he went on to speak, in his character of Legislator, of the rapid growth in importance in our Province and the magnificent future that lies before it, and confidently predicted that it would become, in no long time, the leading Province in the Dominion.

Many toasts followed, which, we regret we have not space to refer to in detail, but must compliment the Rev. Mr. Harrison on the sturdy stand he took up, in responding to the toast of "The Clergy," as to the position a parson should hold among his flock, a man among men, sharing in their sports and pastimes, setting them an example in the way of right living, instead of pretending to a standard of life apart from them and practically unsupportable by the average man. Speeches, mostly short and humorous, were interspersed with songs, of which we single out "Widdicombe Fair" and "Tommy Atkins" given by J. G. Tweed, "Drinking," very well sung by Gordon Hinde, and "The Friar of Orders Gray," by the Rev. Harrison. Delbeck sang a song which we learn was in the Finnish language, though we detected a mixed flavor of English, French and German in it. He also greatly amused the company by his yarns of recent shooting experiences, which included ducks which he got no chance to eat and an eagle of immense proportions by shooting which he made ten dollars.

The health of the Chairman, R. W. Wildoss, was proposed by Howard Abell, who spoke of bankers generally as being hard men of business with little time or taste for mingling in the social life of their community.

He was glad to recognize a brilliant exception in the Chairman, who, since he came to Cochrane, has taken a most active part in our recreations as well as in the various efforts being made for the development of the district and promotion of its business interests.

The toast was very enthusiastically received and Mr. Wildoss returned thanks in an almost too modest speech.

The party broke up at the reasonable hour of 11:30 having first sung a stanza of "God Save the King."

Wm. Dean is deserving of high compliment on the repast served on the first opportunity he has had of showing what he can do in this line. The long and comfortably wide table, handsomely set out with new damask napery and bright cutlery and glass, was amply covered with good things of most appetizing appearance, which was fully borne out when they were sampled. The service was rapid, silent and free from fussiness or confusion, while Mr. Dean was unobtrusively alert in seeing that every man got what he wanted and plenty of it.

His success was recognized by the company drinking a health to "Our Host and Hostess," followed with the chorus of "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." Mrs. Dean, though she did not appear on the scene, had evidently had a leading hand in the decorative setting out of the table, which was excellent done.

KILLED AT HIS POST

It is with deep regret we have to report the death of John Williams, Section Foreman on the C. P. R. at Radnor, who was struck by a train on Tuesday while trying to remove a hand car from the rails. His leg was broken and he also suffered internal injuries. The train, the second section of No. 2, East bound, was held and the injured man carried on it to Calgary, where death occurred on Wednesday morning. This sad occurrence recalls the fact that John Bruce, also a section foreman, met death in a similar manner on the same section of rails some four years ago.

Jock Williams, as he was familiarly called, was a Lancashire lad of particularly happy disposition and a good and steady workman. He and his wife came here from the Old Country about five years ago and Jock worked on the Cochrane Section under John Wright, until he was deservedly promoted to the foreman's place at Radnor. The sympathy of many friends here and of Jock's fellow workmen will go out sincerely to the young wife in her terribly sudden bereavement.

At time of writing we understand that the funeral is to take place at English Cemetery, at Milford, tomorrow (Friday) afternoon.

COCHRANE.

We omitted to note that Charlie Grayson's well bred and handsome Cocker Spaniel took first prize for dogs at the Grand Valley Show. A mastiff, very much on the small side was second, and A. M. Baptie took third place with a collie.

A party of C. P. R. surveyors were at the station in a boarding car for some days last week; we understand they were thoroughly examining the road bed and rails of the section to make sure everything is in good shape against the coming winter.
